When Does I'm A Celebrity All Stars Return? Air Date Confirmed

After the 2025 edition of I'm A Celebrity... Get Me Out Of Here! wrapped up, fans are already turning their eyes to the next big thing — I'm A Celebrity All Stars. The special “All Stars” spin-off series is back, and the month of its return has finally been confirmed.

All Stars Is Coming Back — But in May 2026

According to the show's hosts, the All Stars edition will re-air in May 2026.

While the exact day has not yet been publicly revealed, the confirmation marks the official return of the beloved spin-off after the success of previous seasons.

A behind-the-scenes montage shared by the hosts simply teased fans with the message that the show will be back in May. Viewers are still waiting for the formal announcement of the precise date from the broadcaster.

What Is This All-Stars Version — And What's Different in 2026

The All Stars variant of I'm A Celebrity... South Africa — often referred to as I'm A Celebrity... South Africa — brings back beloved campmates from prior seasons. It's a chance for former contestants to re-enter the jungle (or, in this case, the South African wilderness), face new challenges, and fight for one more shot at glory.

This upcoming 2026 season has been confirmed by the producers: filming already took place in South Africa in September 2025. That means the show is already in the can — and all that remains is for the episodes to begin airing.

According to the official announcement, the new season will feature:

- A brand new group of returning celebrities (previous campmates).
- “Epic” and more extreme challenges than ever before, tailored to push the veterans to their limits.

- A twist for 2026: while the bulk of the series is pre-recorded, the final episode will be live, giving the public a chance to vote for their favourite All Stars campmate and determine the winner.

This marks a shift from typical All Stars format, offering a mix of pre-recorded content and live-interactive finale — designed to blend polished episodes with the excitement of a live public vote.

Why the Delay — And What It Means for Fans

With the show confirmed for May 2026, fans will have to wait several months from now before the All Stars jungle returns. The delay seems intentional: the producers want to give enough time after the 2025 season ends to build anticipation, ensure the new episodes are fully edited, and schedule the final live vote properly.

Because filming already happened (in September 2025), this gap is likely being used to polish the episodes: choose the best challenges, edit dramatic moments, and prep the live finale so the show hits screens looking slick.

For long-time viewers, this means the chance to see familiar faces return — possibly including campmates from older seasons — but in a fresh setting, with tougher challenges and a new, interactive format twist.

What Watchers Can Expect — And What's Already Confirmed

The producers and hosts have given fans a taste of what's to come:

- A mix of returning celebrities from past seasons — the All Stars lineup will lift favourite (and perhaps infamous) contestants for one more round.
- Trials and challenges described as “harder than ever,” thanks to filming in rugged South African terrain and new survival-style tasks.
- The televised series on channels including the original network plus streaming options, giving viewers the flexibility to tune in.
- A live final with public voting — offering a heightened sense of engagement and ownership for fans to decide who becomes this season's All Stars champion.

What We Still Don't Know — But What to Watch Out For

Although May 2026 is confirmed as the start month, the exact day remains unannounced. As of now, there's no official release schedule published by the broadcasters.

Also, the full confirmed cast list has not been made public — only rumours and speculation about possible returning campmates. Although media outlets have floated names, no official confirmation of who is in the lineup has come from the producers yet.

Finally, while we know the final will air live and involve public voting, details about when exactly that final will happen — and whether there will be companion shows or behind-the-scenes specials — have not been clarified.
